Today is Saturday, June 5, the 156th day of 1965 with 209 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star is Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus and Mars.

Nationalist China's Madame Chiang Kai-shek was born on this day in 1897.

On this day in history:

In 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt signed a bill abolishing the gold standard.

In 1950, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled unanimously that segregation practices in Southern railroad dining cars and in two Southern universities were invalid.

In 1962, an Air France 707 jet crashed in Paris, killing 130 persons, including 121 from Atlanta, Ga., on a European air study trip.

In 1963, British War Secretary John Profumo resigned after admitting he had lied to Parliament in denying "impropriety" with British call girl Christine Keeler.

A thought for the day: Greek painter Zeuxis said: "Criticism comes easier than craftsmanship."

Composer To Be Present At Production

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Hollywood composer Billy Vaughn, a native Kentuckian who wrote original songs and lyrics for the film, "Wonders of Kentucky," was an honored guest at the production's premiere here on June 5.

The initial showing was set for 7:30 p.m. in the Capitol Theatre for special guests including State officials and legislators, county judges and others. Afterward, the film will be shown free a number of times for the general public.

Vaughn, a native of Glasgow, is a man of diversified talents. He plays nine musical instruments, is a lyricist, composer, cartoonist, and athlete.

He has to his credit a long list of successful record albums. They range from his famous "Swiss" trademark, as in "Billy Vaughn Plays" and "Golden Saxophones" to the gentle strings and voices of "Billy Vaughn Plays Stephen Foster."

The modest and unassuming Vaughn also has been acclaimed as a dance band leader for recordings. "The Big 100" was a smash hit in record shops.

Another Kentucky native, screen television and stage star Tonie Ewell, now of New York, also had a hand in "Wonders of Kentucky." Ewell narrated the film but will not be able to attend the premiere as he has a daily live radio show in New York.

Ewell, born in Owensboro, achieved stardom on the New York stage in "The Seven Year Itch." He has also had starring roles in such productions as "The Tunnel of Love" and "A Thousand Caravans" and has played in a number of Hollywood movies. In 1960, he made his debut as the star of a television series, "The Tom Ewell Show."

Both Vaughn and Ewell contributed to the production of "Wonders of Kentucky" without compensation.

The 20-minute color film, to be shown at more than 250 Kentucky movie houses in June, highlights the Bluegrass State's major tourist attractions and industrial growth.

Produced by Poster Films, Inc., New York, and distributed by Columbia Pictures, "Wonders of Kentucky" is expected to be shown in 6,000 theaters around the nation. Recordings will be made in five languages for overseas showings.

Story Of AL Pennant Race May Be Told

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer

The story of the 1965 American League pennant race may well have been told Friday night when 12 bombs burst in Yankee Stadium.

Roll back the clock and call the roll — the greats you'd say that the bombs were fired by Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Vernon, and others.

For it may be the long ball may now be dying by it.

It was "operation get well" for the Yankees because they were facing the White Sox. So often in the past, the Yankees pulled out victories and turned the tide of the pennant race. But this time it was different.

Things Have Changed
This time it was the White Sox who came up with the long ball — the big, heavy shot, terrorized the league in years past.

Danny Cater broke the 15-inning scoreless spell with a homer and one out after Floyd Robinson also bled the Sox.

Fisher's easy fifth victory against one loss. Fisher stopped the Yankees on one hit over the last six innings to win over Pete Miskowski, who suffered his second loss.

The Minnesota Twins made the 12 victories in their last 15 games with a 9-5 win over the Washington Senators. The Cleveland Indians beat the Detroit Tigers 7-6 and the Los Angeles Angels downed the Baltimore Orioles 4-1 in other games.

In the National League, Milwaukee defeated Los Angeles, 5-2. Philadelphia topped Chicago, 6-0. New York nipped Pittsburgh 2-1. Cincinnati downed San Francisco 4-2 and Houston beat St. Louis 5-2.

Kaat Wins Fifth
Jim Kaat won his fifth game for the Twins with the help of homers

It was Kaat's fifth victory against five losses while Danny Koplitz suffered the loss.

Joe Azcue's two-run single in the eighth-inning drove in the winning runs for the Indians as Sonny Siebert raised his record to 6-2. Al Kaline homered for the Tigers.

Rookie Marcelino Lopez won his seventh game for the Angels, aided by Bob Lee's relief in the ninth. Jim Fregot had two hits for the Angels.

Mathews Shows Braves That Best Trades Are Ones Not Made

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer

Eddie Mathews is showing the Milwaukee Braves the truth of that old baseball axiom that sometimes the best trades are the ones which aren't made.

Mathews was a forlorn old man of 33 totting a .233 batting average when the 1964 season ended and General Manager John McFall of the Braves tried to peddle him to just about anybody who'd listen.

No one would listen then but they're listening now because Mathews is making one of the really surprising comeback of the 1965 campaign with 12 homers, a .272 batting average and a deluge of game-winning hits that are keeping the Braves in the National League pennant race.

Mathews delivered the most important hit of the Braves' season so far Friday night when his 12th homer of the season with two on and one out in the ninth inning gave Milwaukee a 5-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. The victory moved the Braves to within four games of the front-running Dodgers whereas a loss would have dropped them six games behind.

Starts Rally
Wade Blasingame singled to start the Braves' winning rally with one out in the ninth and Felipe Alou also singled before Mathews hammered the 45th homer of his career deep into the right field seats at Milwaukee.

The drive gave Blasingame his fourth straight win and sixth of the season. Blasingame, a $100,000 bonus pitcher who didn't get into the Braves' starting rotation until they sent Warren Spahn to the New York Mets, was the route to the win. He pitched a five-hitter for the Cardinals, but two of the hits were homers — one a two-run homer by Walt Bond in the sixth and the other a three-run blast by 191-hitting Ron Brand in the ninth. Bob Bruce went eight innings to score his fourth win for the Astros.

Jim Bunning pitched a five-hitter and struck out seven in gaining his third shutout of the year for the Phillies. Wes Covington hit a two-run homer and Johnny Callison had a double and a triple for the Phillies.

The commissioner said a great deal of relief in the potential employment situation will result if each employer who hires from 10 to 100 workers will add one additional summer trainee. Larger employers were urged by Dawson to add one extra summer employee for each 100 regular workers.

Many girls and boys are out of school and looking for work and will be swelling the total unemployment in the state during the months of June, July and August, Dawson noted.

Kentucky should pledge itself to do its share today toward increasing the opportunities for employment of these young people," he said.

Dawson said "employment service representatives will be calling up on employers of all types to provide extra job openings during the summer months for these young people."

CHAPTER 15

ESRA BOND had met nobody in his walk from the Ashley mansion, though he must have been seen from a distance by many slaves and perhaps certain overseers and planters. He didn't know.

The truth was, he had been absorbed in his thoughts of Lady Helen Ashley and had been unaware of much that might have taken place around him. Except for that sixth sense or whatever it was that had warned him a moment ago, and had brought him to a full stop right where he now stood, he might have walked into the capital in this dated condition—and into the arms of a British press gang.

A twinge of panic touched him, but it was swiftly suppressed. For an instant he did think of hastening back to Lady Helen Ashley, but this thought, too, he suppressed. She was up, set, and there was no telling what she might do. Ezra didn't know much about women, but he knew enough to tell that alone when they were bawling.

After a long thought he did the simplest and he believed the most sensible thing. He went to the nearest pawn shop—you were never far from sugar cane on St. Kitts—and having made sure that he was not watched, entered it. He walked or squirmed his way for about fifty feet, and then sat down on the soft dry earth to wait for the sun to set. It was uncomfortable, but R was safe. The press gang would not even dream of searching all the cane fields near Basseterre. They'd need an army for that.

He had plenty of time, then, to think about Helen Ashley. He had no need to plot his own future course with her. He would come back, time after time, until he was dead. He just wouldn't take No for an answer. Things had happened mighty fast. This he was not used to. Back home, when you sparked a woman, you took your time—years maybe. Yet the magic of those hours when everything between them twined with pure joy had been the equivalent of many months of more gradual courting.

Returning to reality, Ezra Bond realized that the long walk, the sun, and the wait in the cane field left him a little stiff, and his legs pained a little. Otherwise he was feeling fine. He made his way down to Basseterre. He noted that the wharves was no farther away, nor any nearer: she seemed not to have moved at all. She could not stay any closer to shore when night fell unless she was expecting a boat back. It stood to reason.

Folks in the West Indies go to bed early. Had he waited a little longer he would have found a slumbering capital. As it was, few things stirred in the sleepy streets and he slipped in. There would be no shore parties from the frigates. Had the skipper been foolish, had every seaman would have scampered away. The best Ezra could hope to find was some small rum shop that catered to the fishermen trade, where he would perhaps make a deal with the owner of a small boat.

Still wary despite the seeming somnolence of Basseterre, he half-croaked the town before he entered it. There were few lights and almost no sounds at all.

Ezra avoided the main street and went by back alleys to the waterfront. This consisted of a long, ramshackle ropewalk and a dozen small houses or shops. It might have been a deserted village, lit only in the moonlight, save for one building—a lighted grocery.

There could be no doubt of its identity. A sign hung before it, and clear on the face of the sign was the likeness of a jack of ale. Otherwise the place might have been taken for a fishmonger's or a chandler's. No rosters were there. No songs rose from it. There was only the eerie creak of the sign as it swung in a weak breeze.

Ezra slipped into the shadow of a clump of palmetto, from where he could look through the open front door. Motionless, he stared for some time.

There was only one man in the place, a hulking dark fellow whose blue apron proclaimed him to be the proprietor. He was leaning on the counter and gazing with no expression at the opposite wall. He did not appear to be waiting for anybody; rather, he looked as though he might be thinking of closing shop.

Ezra drew a deep breath. He crossed the intervening space and went through the doorway.

The big man's eye brightened. He liked the look of Ezra's coat, and he waited no time. He ordered ale and a piece of bread and cheese. A stranger in a small town like this would draw attention at any time, and the sooner he got over to Statia, the better.

"I want to go over to Statia," the man did not seem astonished.

"Cost you something," he warned, still eyeing Ezra's coat. "How much?"

"Well, two pounds six is the usual."

"That's too much," Ezra said bristly. It was too much, yet he would gladly have paid it if he had not feared that such readiness to give in itself gave rise to suspicion.

The proprietor shrugged. He waddled to the door.

"You can argue with me with Elliphahe. He's your man, and it's what he usually gets for the rum. I'll fetch him."

He went out into the street, and Ezra was left alone.

Ezra did not like it. He got up and went to the door and opened this a crack. The street was deserted. The proprietor would have hardly gone more than a few yards.

Ezra went back to his cheese and ale, but he still didn't like the situation.

He rose suddenly, leaving the

Hoffman Home Scene Of Group II CWF Regular Meeting

Mrs. B. J. Hoffman opened her home on Miller Avenue for the meeting of Group II of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church held Tuesday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock.

Presenting the program was Mrs. A. B. Austin who gave a discussion on the subject, "New Flaga", which concerned new countries of the world.

The devotion was given by Mrs. Rupert Parks. The group chairman, Mrs. Robert Singleton, presided at the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hoffman to the ten members and one guest, Mrs. Overby.

Bridal Tea Given At Fellowship Hall For Mrs. Knight

Mrs. Herbert Dunn of Murray and Mrs. Cave Thomas of Lone Oak were hostesses Saturday afternoon, May 29, in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church, Mayfield, to a beautifully planned tea, honoring their niece, Mrs. Richard Knight of Murray, who before her recent marriage was Miss Annie Putrell of Mayfield.

The honoree chose to wear for the occasion a soft yellow summer knit two piece dress. A white carnation complimented her costume.

In the receiving line were the honoree, Mrs. Knight, her mother, Mrs. Gilbert Putrell, her mother-in-law, Mrs. Wallace Knight, and the hostesses.

The tea table, covered with a pink cloth overlaid with pink net caught at the corners with nosegay centered pink satin bows, held a centerpiece of tinted carnations and mums arranged in a cut glass container and topped with a miniature bride and groom statuette standing under an arch of tiny lilacs of the valley. This arrangement was flanked on either side by crystal holders containing pink candles.

Serving at the tea table were Mrs. Ronnie Watson of Murray, Miss Martha Thomas of Lone Oak, cousin of the honoree, and Miss Mary Putrell, sister of the recent bride.

The gifts were displayed on a table draped in white which was centered with a satin-costumed bride doll whose pink ribbon streamers reached out to the stacks of varicolored bows from the gifts.

Dear Abby . . .

It's A Dog's Life!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I sure got a kick out of your column. I don't suppose you really write all of it yourself. You probably have a staff of writers. And that picture of you is a hoot! How old is it? I'll be you're really a fat old maid taking out her frustrations by telling other people how to run their lives. You get a letter with just one side of the story and you hand out advice like you knew all the answers. I'm a 31-year-old bachelor. And if that's your picture, and it's not 20 years old, I might even ask you to marry me. (How would you like to live in Salt Lake City?)

WOODY
DEAR WOODY: I don't have any writers, so I'll take all the credit for what is printed here. (And all the blame, too.) I don't give advice, I express an opinion. To give advice one must know both sides, but I do the best I can with the facts I have, and if I am able to help I'm happy. The picture is mine, and it's unrepresentative. I'm a 31-year-old bachelor. I would be fine with me, but I'm 15 years older than you, and very much married, so I won't hold you to your offer.

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 years old and just had the most bewildering proposal of marriage. He's a young man I've known a long time, but I never dreamed he was thinking of me as "wife material." He said he would marry me if I got my nose fixed. Now, I do have a big nose, but I accepted it as part of me, and it goes with my face, so I never considered getting it fixed. Frankly, I don't think it would make that much difference. It's not as though my nose stands between me and my being a perfect beauty. This young man would make a good husband, but I wonder if I should take his proposal under consideration.

MISS S.
DEAR MISS S.: If your nose has never bothered you and you've never considered getting it "fixed," tell the young man that your nose goes where you go. And if he doesn't want you, nose and all, heaven knows he's not for you.

DEAR ABBY: Can you answer a few very simple questions for me? I am the mother of four children and, Henry Holton, Misses Louise and Madelyn Lamb.

Luncheon will be served at the Oaks Country Club. Reservations must be made one week in advance by signing at the Pro Shop or calling the luncheon chairman, Ruth Brandon 753-5600, or co-chairman, Constance Boyd 753-4916. All ladies are urged to attend.

Thursday, June 10
The South Murray Homemakers Club will meet at the City Park at ten a.m.

The Woodmen Circle will meet at the Woman's Club House at 6:30 p.m.

Friday, June 11
The first annual Charity Ball for the support of the Murray-Calhoun Mental Health Clinic will be held at the Student Union ballroom from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. with Jack Stalcup and his orchestra. Admission is five dollars per couple.

The Story Hour for second through fourth grade will be held at the Public Library from three to four p.m.

Miss Diana Nanney Honored At Shower Recently At Center

Miss Diana Elizabeth Nanney, June 12th bride-elect of William Thomas Lyons, was honored with a lovely bridal shower recently at the Dexter Community Center.

The hostesses for the pre-nuptial occasion were Mrs. Howard Bucy and Mrs. Sherman Borders.

For the event the honoree chose to wear a white and green crepe puff dress and was presented a beautiful corsage of yellow lilies.

Miss Nanney opened her many lovely gifts which had been placed on a table centered with a wedding bell with streamers extending out from it and a bride doll.

Games were played and prizes were presented to the winners.

The hall was a lovely setting with the honoree opening the gifts on the decorated table on the platform at one end and the beautifully decorated tea table being at the opposite end of the room.

A lace cloth over yellow draped the tea table which was centered with an arrangement of yellow lilies. Punch and decorated cake were served in the crystal appointments. Miss Sandra Harmon assisted in the serving.

One hundred and ten persons were present or sent gifts to the evening occasion.

Mrs. Magness New Club President

Mrs. W. J. Gibson Hostess For Meet Fellowship Group

The home of Mrs. W. J. Gibson on North Eighth Street was the scene of the meeting of Group II of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church held on Tuesday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock.

Mrs. Frank Roberts, assisted by Mrs. Eugene Scott, presented the program on "The New Flaga" which was a summary of the lessons for the past six months on new countries.

The devotion was given by Mrs. Clyde Jones, assisted by Mrs. Ory Paschall.

Mrs. Max Brandon Installed At Meet

Mrs. Max Brandon, the former Barbara Ashcraft of Murray, was installed as first vice-president of the Lone Oak Junior Woman's Club at its installation Monday evening at the Diplomat Inn, Paducah.

Installed as president was Mrs. H. K. Stewart, Mrs. Malcolm Cross, KPWOC education chairman, installed the officers and was guest speaker.

Mrs. Brandon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Ashcraft of Murray.
